FOR PRESIDENT,

[The choice of the Republicans of Pennsylvania, subject to the decision of the National Convention]

HON. JAMES G. BLAINE,

OF MAINE.

"I wish to speak for the millions of all political parties, and in their name to declare that the Republic must be strong enough, and shall be strong enough to protect the weakest of its citizens in all their rights."—JAMES G. BLAINE.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THERE was more politics than piety in Chicago last Sunday.

THE colored delegates seem to hold the key to the situation at Chicago.

THE Democracy everywhere is sighing for the nomination of Gen. Grant to-day.

TO-DAY the next President of the United States will be nominated at Chicago, whether it be Grant, Blaine or Sherman.

THERE is one county in the State, Beaver, that would like to see Quay made Senator. But, then, Beaver is Quay's home.

SENATOR Bruce, of Mississippi, is prominently spoken of as a candidate for Vice President. A better selection could not be made.

THE Tribune thinks it a question of busting the unit rule or busting the Republican party. We hardly think it quite as bad as that.

IF the Chicago convention should nominate Edmunds and Bruce they would put in the field a faultless ticket. Both of these men are above reproach.

THE Chicago Inter-Ocean, after making a fair calculation of the strength of the respective candidates for President, reports the result as follows: Grant, 422; Blaine, 182; Sherman, 93; Washburne, 8; Edmunds, 31; Windom, 10. This gives Grant 43 more than a majority over all. There are many who claim more votes than this for Grant, but the Inter-Ocean is disposed to keep below rather than go above the probabilities.

WOULDN'T it be a great joke if the "dark horse" of the Chicago convention should turn out to be Bruce? Then if he should run against Tilden and beat him it would be joke No. 2, and a "loud" send off for the Grammercy Park men. Then, again, if he shonld roll up a bigger majority than Grant ever had, it would be a huge joke all around, and some of the stalwarts would fall to the rear of the column. Nobody should be alarmed at these remarks however, as it is not likely to occur.

MEMPHIS is at last in a condition to fight the yellow fever on scientific principles—or, which amounts to the same thing, guard against its ravages by putting the city into good sanitary condition. Since Yellow Jack took his departure last fall, the citizens have constructed sixty miles of sewerage. About one-half of this is for main or general drainage, and the balance consists of drain-tile for branches or feeders. There has also been a general cleaning up throughout the city. Old vaults and cess-pools have been filled up, ponds have been drained, rotten wood pavements have been removed, a number of old rookeries have been destroyed, and filth and dirt have been attacked and made way with in all quarters. The city may not escape the scourge altogether this summer, as it is difficult to get rid of the germs of this terrible disease once they have been widely disseminated; but there can be no doubt that the plague will be much more easily controlled, if not stamped out entirely, now that the city has adopted the right plan for dealing with it.

Chicago and the Politicians.

By the time many of our subscribers shall have read this sentence they will know the result of the Republican Presidential Convention at Chicago. That it will be such as to give them renewed hope and courage and strengthened determination to work and win, we fervently pray. At the present moment, however, we are not without some emotions of painful misgiving. Not that we doubt that the masses of the party are as true as we could wish or that our majority throughout the country is as overpowering as it ever was; neither do we apprehend that our representatives at Chicago are not actuated by sincere and patriotic motives; nor, even, that they will select a man as the national representative of our party who is not worthy of that eminent position. Our fear is, simply, that there are elements of disaffection at work which in a certain probable contingency may have the effect to cool the ardor of many, if it shall not cause positive division.

There is a spirit among many of our leaders which is frequently unwise as well as wrong; among the leaders we say, and are saddened to believe that it is those who should direct the rest to good and politic ends who are the real mischief-makers in this case. We do not know—and we can say we do not believe—that any of the prominent candidates for the presidency are so selfish as to wish in any way to injure the party or endanger its success. It is another class—those who would expect to be the power behind the throne if their candidate should be selected, who are creating all the disturbances. Each is determined to win, and too many of them seem to have no regard to any principle or any policy but that which shall secure the success of their favorite in the nominating convention. These remarks are not to be applied to the workers in behalf of any one, merely, of the prominent gentlemen named for our leader; it is true, to some extent, we are pained to believe, of all, or nearly all, the factions into which the party is—or has been—divided as respects the choice at Chicago. So much bitterness, so much willfulness, so much selfishness as have been evoked cannot but leave wounds and sores that it will be impossible to heal at once, and which we fear will affect the health of the entire party to a considerable extent.

Yet in the soundness, clear-headedness and unselfishness of the voting masses of the party we have boundless and hopeful confidence. To them, who have no private interests or individual spite to gratify, we can look to correct the evils and dangers which their less unselfish leaders would bring upon us. It is the people, indeed, who are the real leaders, and it is a shame they cannot secure more worthy representatives in important positions. We need more large men for our chief positions; men who shall be worthy of those who elevate them to places of importance.

There is no one likely to be nominated at Chicago who is not worthy to be President of the American Republic, and whoever is selected, the Republican party must elect, notwithstanding the difficulties which may be thrown in our way by disappointed politicians.

THE oldest ex-State Senator now living is the Hon. Alvin Bronson, of Oswego. He is a well and hearty man, walking down town nearly every day, and having a prospect for continued health for several years to come as good, apparently, as that of the younger men about him. He entered the New York Senate in January, 1823, and served altogether eight years. It is not easy to realize that Mr. Bronson was fourteen years old when Washington retired from office, and that he voted for Jefferson.

The Business Outlook.

All classes of trade having been pretty well shaken up by the reactionary movements of the last six weeks, trade has settled down into something like a normal condition. The results of the excessive speculations of the past six months were first prominent in the break in iron during the early part of April. This was accompanied by declining markets for grain and cotton, and after taking numerous forms, wound up in the panic in railway stocks which has just concluded. Comparing our position with that of sixty days, we see that there has been a reduction of forty to sixty per cent. on the staples of production and stocks which had been inflated by speculation. Prices have now returned to a level which will promote consumption rater than retard it, as was the result of the previous unwarranted advances.

The permanent prosperity of the country cannot be expected to follow a course of wild speculations; and as that element is pretty well eliminated from business, it may be expected to go forward on a sounder basis than ever before. Wholesome indications as to the future of trade are discernible. There is every prospect of good crops in the west, subject of course to the chance of drought, and all other dangers between this and harvest. Legitimate enterprises of all kinds are prosecuted throughout the country with energy. Trade of all kinds is moving forward on a conservative and safe basis. Our foreign commerce still retains a favorable balance of trade, notwithstanding the unprecedented importations of European merchandise during April and May. The most unsatisfactory aspect of business is the danger that our immense importations of merchandise may create an adverse balance of trade, which will drain the country of its gold and leave it dependent on its stock of silver as the sole basis of its monetary system.

In unison with the generally improved tone of the merchandise markets, the stock exchanges have during the past two days assumed a more confident view of the future. The entire list has recovered a portion of the last decline, and some of the securities most severely affected are now the most prominent in the recovery. On government bonds the only effect of the late adversities has been to advance their prices. The investing public has rushed with avidity for everything that possessed the characteristic of security, and the quotations on 4½ and 4 per cent. bonds now make them less than 3½ per cent. securities to the investor. The iron trade is also steadier both here and in the east. The Reading failure takes a large amount of manufacturing capacity out of production; and when the pending labor questions are settled, we may look with some confidence for a steady iron market, which may develop into renewed activity before the close of the year.

With prices readjusted to something like their true status, with abundant crops, with trade brought back to the methods of conservatism and safety, and with speculation so severely handled that it will be comparatively quiet for the rest of the season, there is no reason to regard the commercial future in any other than in a favorable light. The nation has at present all the conditions most conducive to a healthful and prosperous business. It has learned the errors of over-trading and speculation, and purged itself of them thoroughly. There is, we trust, no likelihood of a fresh boom, but unless unforeseen difficulties arise, our commercial future should be marked by prosperity and soundness.

RECEIVERS have been appointed for the Reading railroad company. They will have a wide field in which to display their skill in bringing about if possible order out of the chaos that now shrouds that corporation, and its parentel offspring, the Coal and Iron Company.

Obituary.

PROFESSOR J. W. SHOEMAKER,

President of the National School of Elocution and Oratory, 1418 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, died at Atchison, Kansas, Saturday evening, May 15, at 8:30 o'clock, of consumption.

By the earnest persuasions of his many friends and pupils he was induced to abandon teaching for several months, in order that he might regain his health. Last month he started for that purpose to Colorado, stopping on his way with some friends at Achison, at which place God saw fit to call him to a still greater work.

Professor Shoemaker was born in Westmoreland county, this State, April 18, 1842. He was the youngest of four children, three sons and one daughter. His father was a minister, at the same time being owner of and resident upon a fine farm. He was educated up to his 16th year in a country public school, but, being ambitious, by teaching and canvassing for book publishers he acquired sufficient means to enter an academy and eventually the State Normal School at Millersville. While a student he enlisted in the armp as a private in 1861, and subsequently completed his course and took his degree as A. M. In 1865 he was sent to Lynchburg, Virginia, to organize and superintend schools for the freedmen. He come north in 1866 and locating in Philadelphia, began to teach elocution and penmanship privately at No. 1223 Green street. In 1868 he was married to Miss Rachel Hinkle of Bucks county, and in 1869 they opened a school of elocution at No. 1208 Chesnut street, which in September, 1873, was chartered as the National School of Elocution and Oratory. This was inaugurated June 11, 1874. The Professor estimates the number of pupils who graduated from the school, and who have been under his instruction at the different institutes, at thirteen thousand, coming from all parts of the country, it being the only institution of the kind in the United States. In 1878 he was elected Professor of Elocution in the University of Pennsylvania, a position which he held at the time of his death. An active worker in the Young Men's Christian Association, he was regarded as a faithful Christian, a kind and affectionate friend, a wise counselor, and a sturdy advocate of educational advancement among the masses.

Most of our Centre county friends will no doubt remember Professor J. W. Shoemaker as an active and instructive worker at our county institutes several years ago held in Bellefonte.

We the students of the National School of Elocution and Oratory draught the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we as students of elocution have lost a valued instructor, one who was eminently qualified to impart a knowledge of the noble art to which he gave his life.

Resolved, That in his death we, as individuals, lose a warm personal friend, whose kindness of heart prompted him to the most sparing efforts and sacrifices for the promotion of onr wellfare.

Resolved, That by his rare ability, intense enthusiasm and untiring labor he has done much to ennoble and dignify the profession with which he was closely identified.

Resolved, That in him were united all the elements of character essential to true Christian manhood: that a love of truth, devotion to duty and an unfaltering trust in God were strongly exemplified in his life.

Resolved, That in the providence of God he has been called from his labors while in the prime of life; yet as a result of his efforts, influences have gone forth that will widen and deepen in the coming years, and be a lasting power for good in the cause of higher education.

Resolved, That we tender to Mrs. Shoemaker our heartfelt sympathy in her great bereavement; but realizing how powerless human sympathy is to alleviate a sorrow such as hers, we commend her to Him who healeth the broken heart and bindeth their wounds.

The professor has said the one great object of his life was to re-establish the school, that in case he was called away it might be continued successfully. To this end he gave all his strength and labor, and we feel sure he has accomplished his aim.

Men of art, literature and science, and advocates of every good and noble, are loved and honored by the world for what they have done; elocution being neglected for so many centuries as a distinctive branch of learning, is now justly termed a modern science, and as its founder and true advocate, we will remember our deceased Professor.

WASHINGTON.

Special Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27, '80

Supposing that Congress shall adjourned on the 3rd or 10th of next month to which time the Senate committee has decided upon postponement, this will have been the most idle, lazy and useless session for many years. It started in with great promise from Democratic sources which are not of extraordinary value.

Speaker Randall and his peculiar friends, said that the appropriation bills would nearly all be completed to committee before the middle of January. How well this promise was kept, may be judged when I tell you that it was not till a few Democratic politicians about two weeks ago, hastily decided that it was but to go home on the 31st that they discovered that those bills were not even then ready for action, four months after the date in this promise. This is the character of Democratic work for the Public.

What has been done? Almost absolutely nothing beyond the introduction of a vast amount of bills and resolutions, for inconceivable objects, except to obstruct real business and to advertise the follies of men who have accidently got into Congress under the accidents which have given the Democratic party a little brief authority. The mischief such men are capable of and the imbecility of this Democratic Congress are well illustrated, in one or two late incidents. During the winter the Public printing office had to close a large part of its work, because Congress had failed to provide means for its continuance; the result was very expensive and embarrassising. It was discovered that the appropriation for gas and other supplies was exhausted, and important work had to be suspended in consequence. Later the money for U. S. Courts has run out and Justice had its hands tied by the bungle of one Legislative department. If this system of mismanagement can do so much damage with the Democrats and party in Power what would be the result of Democratic ascendancy in every branch of the Government? This is a serious question for the voters and tax-payers.

The adoption of any law to regulate the count of the electoral vote is impossible before the next President shall be inaugurated. In fact the generality of Republicans are satisfied with the usage that has held since the foundation of the Government. The first Vice President pro tem, was elected expressly to count the votes for President and Vice President. Since then until 1876 every Vice President has performed that duty and there is no reason why it should not remain in his hands. Of course it is not satisfactory to the Democrats neither would be any method which would deprive them of power. But they will have to submit—its the inevitable.

THE severity of the sentences of the Nihilists just tried for the murder of General Merentzoff may seem inconsistent with the published policy of reconciliation on the part of General Melikoff; for although the sentences have not been officially accepted by him, yet they order those things differently in Russia, and the acting Emperor probably was well aware of what they were to be. But Melikoff has the hand of iron beneath the glove of velvet, and may be expected to keep a firm hand where firmness is needed. As for any sympathy with these wretches. it is wasted. If the Nihilists were called the annihilators, a better idea of their ends would be given than by their present name. What the origin is of the opinion, which seems not uncommon in this country, that the Nihilists are the Liberals of Russia, is hard to see. Bakunin, the Nihilist leader, has himself denied this, and their doctrines are, as ex-Minister to Russia Stoughton says, enough to make the Kearneyists, Socialists and Communists shudder, and no punishment can be too severe for them provided it is just.

THE Cadet Whittaker has been found guilty of mutilating himself by the court of inquiry, and placed in irons. He still protests his innocence, and there are many who believe he speaks the truth.

Politics at Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 31. — Yesterday passed busily at the hotels and headquarters of all the candidates. Preparations of considerable magnitude are making for the two open-air meetings on the lake front to-night. The Grant meeting has secured some of the best speakers in the city.

The anti-Grant men will probably be addressed rather by business men than by famous orators.

J. Milton Turner, of St. Louis, chairman of the national committee for the negro men, is here and opened rooms for headquarters to-day for the advancement of the chances of Senator Bruce for the vice-presidency.

Don Cameron was confined to his bed last night by an attack of his old complaint, sciatica; but Senator Conkling is on the ground, and the Grant men feel easy and as serene as possible. The big Grant meeting will take place this evening in the open air, weather permitting, on the lake side, just a few blocks north of the exposition building.

Senators Conkling, Logan and Carpenter will speak, and there will be a grand time generally. The Blaine men intend to hold an opposition meeting on the next block.

The most prominent of the colored delegates from the South are here, and they are the most demonstrative and combative persons in the crowds at the hotels. They seem to be changing from Sherman to Grant, although the Sherman men are confident that those of them that are here as Sherman men will adhere to their original purpose on the first ballot and until a choice comes, if it does come, between Grant and Blaine.

The local pressure against Grant seems to be growing in intensity every hour, and is in a large measure brought by business men. The Blaine people are not putting anything in the way of it, but are rather aiding. They have been telegraphing in all directions for good anti-Grant talkers to hurry here and make themselves useful in the lobbies. The Blaine leaders are predicting that the third-term schemers will have to give way before so much public opinion.

Pennsylvania has not turned up very strong so far, and the delegation headquarters are not yet occupied. Senator Cameron feels that a mistake has been made in not getting the delegation here in a body. Only two or three real workers and possibly a dozen delegates from Pennsylvania have arrived, and the fact only help on the stories that the delegation is all broken up and out of Cameron's control. It will have a meeting on Tuesday morning, when a chairman will be elected. It will doubtless be Cameron, but as he will be in the chair at a very important period of the convention Secretary Quay will act as chairman of the delegation until the convention is organized and Cameron is free to take his place at its head.

Senator Pinchback gobbles up every colored delegate as soon as he gets in, and drops sweet information in his ear. The colored man appreciates his importance, and is conducting himself with great shrewdness.

Every man who has become President of the United States was elected during a leap year. This is something for the girls to wonder over.

Poetry.

Our Country's Dead.

BY E. A. NIVEN.

Wild winds of May, breathe soft to-day,
Attune your notes to murmurs low;
Fair flowers, distill your richest sweets
Among the graves we cherish so.

Here, where the tenderest shadows fall,
Where grief and memory greeting make,
Where many a marble seneschal
Guards hero-dust for love's sweet sake,

Let patriots bend o'er patriot dust,
Let songs instead of tears arise;
For nations thrive when such a trust
Is counted with their legacies.

When war's fierce rancor ruled the land,
And clarion trumpets called to arms,
What spirit moved the armies grand
To do and dare midst wild alarms?

That spirit which in earlier days
Inflamed the hearts of patriot sires;
That earned a nation's honored bays,
And kept alive her patriot fires.

So those who sleep beneath the sod,
In Freedom's life still have a part;
Their blood, transfused, hath, under God,
Enriched a loyal nation's heart.

Ah, true it is that not in vain
Our valiant heroes fought to die,
Whether on hill, or sea, or plain,
They made the sacrifice so high!

Since through their valor peace at last
Unto a sorrowing country came;
Since in their blood, so freely cast,
Glowed brighter still fair Freedom's name.

The flowers we bring are love's sweet gifts;
Our thoughts far sweeter are than these,
As memory dear in kindness lifts
The veil that hides her mysteries.

Affection decks the sacred sod
With flowers whose fragrance scents the air
While memory seeks the realms of God,
And greets the spirits waiting there.

So let the tender blossoms fall
Alike upon our dead—our brave;
Peace, endless peace is with them all,
And glory guards each honored grave.

Our Story Teller.

THAT BOY.

"Husband, there is somebody out in the yard sawing wood. Who do you suppose it is?"

Farmer Granger turned himself in bed, listened a moment, and then with the sleepy sigh of one who realizes that the time for dreaming is over and work hours are at hand, replied:

"It is old Warner, likely. He's had time to get over his tantrum. I'll see."

The farmer's toilet was not one that required hours to perfect, and before Mrs. Granger concluded that it was time to be stirring, the brown trousers and blue frock of her husband could have been seen at the further end of the big kitchen, while two gray eyes were peering through the half-opened blind.

No red-nosed, haggard-faced old man met his gaze, but a pale-cheeked, bare footed boy, whose low whistle kept time as he worked, while the heap of sticks at his feet gave evidence that his saw had made quick pace since sunrise.

"What are you about, boy?" was the farmer's salutation, as he approached the wood pile.

"I thought, maybe, you would give me some breakfast if I sawed awhile," answered the lad, looking up as if to note how his proposition would be received.

"Breakfast! Of course! We never turn folks away hungry. Where did you come from?"

"Over east," was the indefinite reply.

"What is your name?"

"Jap."

"Jap?"

"That's what they call me—my real name is Jasper."

"Who are they—your father and your mother?"

"I haven't any, sir."

"Brothers and sisters?"

"Not one," was the curt reply.

The farmer looked sharply at the boy from under his broad brimmed hat, as the saw plied two and fro, and doubtless he would have pushed his inquiries still further had not the impatient lowing of Whitey and Doll reminded him that it was milking time.

"Well, you don't look over and above strongish. You'd better let that wood alone till you get some victuals down."

"I'd rather keep on," was the only answer, and the work proceeded with no interruption until Ethel, the three year old pet of the family came trotting around the corner of the house to announce that breakfast was ready.

"Come right in, come right in. You've earned a good meal of victuals," and Farmer Granger led the way, with his little girl perched upon his shoulder.

The lad silently took the place assigned him, at one end of the table, opposite Ethel and her father, while Mrs. Granger and a pappy faced old lady occupied seats on either side.

The first supply of broiled ham and baked potatoes had disappeared from the boy's plate, and the second instalment was vanishing bit by bit, when Mrs. Granger suddenly discovered that he had no butter.

"No, ma'am; I don't care for it—this bread is good enough without butter," when the plate was passed.

Mrs. Granger received this compliment with a pleased smile, and an extra large doughnut immediately found its way to accompany the butterless bread.

"I'd like to work a while longer to pay for that breakfast," remarked the boy as he followed the farmer through the wood house. "I haven't tasted anything so good for a long time," and the saw was taken up without waiting for permission.

"Well, if you've a mind to cut and pile up a spell, you can stay and get your dinner. We always mean to have good victuals and plenty of them here."

Mrs. Granger stopped now and then to look out of the buttery window; and "I wonder who that boy is anyhow?" was repeated more than once to grandma, who sat in the little old rocker quietly knitting.

"Now, where are you bound for, Jap?" questioned the farmer, as the lad picked up his bundle after dinner and seemed ready to take his departure.

"I don't know, sir," he replied, digging his bare toes into the dirt. "I s'pose I'll stop anywhere I can get work."

"What's the matter with this place?" with a twinkle of the gray eyes. "That wood's to cut, and it'll take three or four days at the least calculation. I'll agree to give you enough to eat and a comfortable bed. Maybe by that time you will want to run home again."

The boy's eyes flashed; but he set his lips firmly together and made no answer for a minute. Then he said:

"You are very kind, sir. I'll stay if you will let me."

"Solomon Granger, you are crazy!" exclaimed the nervous little woman when her husband related the foregoing conversation. "The idea of having that boy in the house all night. I shan't sleep a wink. Likely as not he'll kill us all before morning, and make off with everything there is here."

"Oh, no! I guess he's all right," was the farmer's rejoinder; while a sweet voice came from over the knitting:

"I never saw a boy with such a face that had anything in him but good honest blood. Depend on't, Lowly, there ain't nothin' wrong about the boy."

But suspicious Mrs. Granger locked her pantry door that night, her china closet, the spare front room, the trunk in the attic that held her best linen, and lastly the door of her grandma's room—the old lady protesting, "I ain't a mite afraid, Lowly," having no effect on her.

"Well, I'm thankful we're all here," was the good woman's ejaculation, as she unbolted her bedroom door after a night of uneasy dreams. "I didn't know what that boy might do. It fidgets me to death to have him around. I do wish you would find out who he is, Soloman."

"He don't seem inclined to tell, and I don't want to be too inquisite, wife. It will come out sooner or later."

Two days passed. The lad kept faithfully at his work, saying little and revealing nothing in regard to himself. The farmer's wife, meanwhile, worried and fretted, turned a dozen keys at night, and was surprised when morning dawned to find everything untouched.

"What are you going to do about going to church?" she asked anxiously on Sunday morning. "There's that boy."

"There's room enough in the wagon," responded the husband, sneeringly.

"I know, but 'taint a bit likely he'll want to go. And I don't dare to leave him home. There's no telling what he'll do."

"I wouldn't worry about that boy. He ain't going off with the house."

"Well, I shall lock up everything and take Ethel, too. We can come home at noon if she gets tired. He's been here just long enough to know where I keep my silver and all. And there's grandma—it ain't safe to leave her alone with him."

"Law me, Lowly, that boy ain't a goin' to hurt me," and the old lady laughed a low, incredulous laugh.

"I ain't so sure about it," said Mrs. Granger, nodding mysteriously "If anything should happen I should never forgive myself. I wish he'd go with us, husband."

The proffered seat, however, was declined, the boy saying:

"Me clothes ain't fit. I'd rather stay round here."

So Mrs. Granger, with numberless misgivings, clambered into the high wagon, tucked little Ethel in beside her, and away they went over the hills to the town two miles away.

"Let me see," said grandma, when the last load of neighbors had passed the gate. "Your name's Jasper, ain't it?"

"Jasper, ma'am."

"Yes. Well, Jasper, can you read?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Well, s'posin' you read out loud to me a spell," and a little old book was brought out from the great chest in the corner, entitled "Tales of a Grandmother."

So the boy read; and grandma, folding her wrinkled hands—hands that were always busy on other days—leaned back with a look of contentment on her sweet old face, thinking to herself, "As if I'd be afeare o' that boy."

"You must ha' been to school considerable," was the comment when the first chapter was ended.

"I never went," was the response.

"Never! who learned you to read, then?"

"Mother."

"And she's dead, you say?"

"Yes, ma'am."

The boy seemed reluctant to engage in any conversation, and hastened to begin the second chapter. Some time passed, till at length the one auditor falling asleep, the story was continued in silence.

Grandma's nap was brought to a sudden close by a rap on the outer door.

Two men stood on the door step, ill-looking fellows, and very dirty in appearance.

"Can you give us something to eat?" asked one.

"Sartin; come right in and sit down," said the old lady, and soon a bountiful repast was spread upon the table.

The boy eyed the two sharply, while grandma, after receiving somewhat crusty answers to a few kindly questions, sat placidly rocking. The eyes of the men roved searchingly about the room. Finally one of them asked:

"Folks gone to church?"

"La, yes. Our folks never stay at home for nothing."

The speaker threw a quick glance toward his companion; the other nodded. Neither movement escaped the pair of watchful eyes in the corner.

A moment after the boy left his seat, sauntered across the room, stopped by the window to look up the road, and then going through the hall which led out of the kitchen he called from the foot of the stairs:

"Dave! Dave! you asleep up there?"

"What do you want?" sounded a gruff voice down the stairway.

"Come down, can't you? And bring along Tige and Fritz. Don't go to sleep again."

Grandma heard in mingled amazement and alarm. Could the boy be in league with these men, and another one in waiting up stairs.

As if in confirmation of her fears, a low growl sounded from the room above. Then came a sharp yelp, followed by little wines of impatience; and with a careless, "Hurry up, Dave!" the lad walked carelessly back to the kitchen. As he reached the door, grandma, overwhelmed with consternation, made a desperate rush for the bedroom beyond, locking the door behind her.

The men in the meantime had neared the outer door.

"Got some dogs up there, have ye?" said one.

"You heard 'em, did you?" was the careless rejoinder.

"Come on, Jim. We might as well clear—our game's up!"

"Yer dogs ain't fierce, be they, youngster?"

"Fritz ain't over and above friendly to strangers," replied the boy, coolly, "and if I was you I wouldn't be here when Tige gets out for a run." Then in a louder tone, "Dave, ain't you coming? But don't let Tige loose till these men get away!"

At this the tramps moved away, cursing the dogs, and muttering low, wrathful threats.

Then going to the room where grandma lay crouched upon the bed scarcely daring to stir, he called through the keyhole:

"They're gone. You can come out now."

"The dogs!" gasped a foint voice.

"There ain't any," he answered softly. "Open the door and I'll tell you."

The bolt was cautiously withdrawn and the old lady's face appeared, white and terrified.

"Come and sit down," said the boy tenderly. "I am sorry I frightened you so. I was afraid it would, but I could not help it."

"I won't stir a step," said grandma, stoutly. "What do you mean by this? You can't fool me. I heard the dogs and the men, too."

A low, pleasant laugh sounded through the room.

"'Twas only me, grandma. I saw those men only meant mischief, and I knew something must be done pretty quick, so I made believe there was somebody up stairs."

"But the dogs," cried the old lady bewildered. "Where are the dogs?"

"I made them bark—listen!"

And then came from the throat of the little ventriloquist such a torrent of growls, whines and yelps, interspersed with, "Down Tige!" and "Be still, Fritz!" that the door was swung open, and grandma leaned against the wall exclaiming:

"Well, I never in all my life! If you don't beat all the boys I ever did see! and there I supposed you was connivin' with them critters, and I was so scart I was just as weak as a rag."

Awhile after this fright at the farm house, old Billy, with his load of three, was plodding peacefully over the brow of the little hill, when suddenly Mrs. Granger's voice, with terror, rang out sharply on the still air:

"The house is afire! And grandma!—oh, Solomon, if grandma is killed I never will forgive myself! Why did we leave that boy!"

"Nonsense!" said Solomon, as he whipped up the horse and scanned the corner of the roof where the smoke was coiling thick and black.

A dozen well-directed pails of water had done the work, and only wet timbers and a pile of rubbish met the farmer's eye when he sprang to the side of the breathless little worker.

The sight of the house and barn untouched, and grandma standing in the door alive and well, put all fears to flight in an instant. But there was a story to relate and the boy stood modestly by while grandma dwelt upon the exciting events of the past hour. The tramps, it was supposed, were the incendiaries, but happily the fire had been discovered in time to prevent any damage.

The returning loads of churchgoers, eager to know the cause of the unusual excitement, stopped at the gate, and the lad suddenly found himself the hero of the hour.

"I told 'em all the bad qualities of Tige and Fritz, Uncle George's dogs, exclaimed the boy, unmindful till the words were spoken that the hearers had never heard of "Uncle George" before. Then with a bright blush he dropped behind one of the men, and for a time let the talk go on unheeded.

"Where o' doggies?" persisted Ethel a few minutes later, unable to understand from whence the sound proceeded, while the others laughed and wondered as the young ventriloquist tried the powers which had done such effective service that day.

It was hours before quiet settled down upon the inmates of the little farmhouse; but before they settled for the night Father Granger and his wife learned all that was needful to know of Jasper Goodrich's former life.

"The only reason I haven't told you," said the boy in reply to the farmer's question, "is because I was afraid you'd send me back. It might as well come out, though—I have run away, but I'll never go back to Uncle George—I'll die sooner than that!"

It was a short story. Until he was several years old he knew only a happy life. Then his father and mother sailed for France, leaving him in care of the minister and his wife. In six months came the news of his father's death, and some time later his mother, too, died and was buried in a foreign land. The boy was then taken possession of by a half-brother of his father's, and who had no love for his young nephew. He was shamefully treated till he could endure it no longer, and he determined to seek a home among strangers.

"I wanted to stay," the boy concluded; "but I didn't dare tell you for fear you would send me back."

"Never, my boy," interrupted the farmer, earnestly. "You can stay with us till you find a better home, we'll do all we can for you."

"Well," said Mrs. Granger, as she lay down that night. "The idea of my distrusting that boy. I declare it makes me feel mean to think of it."

Early the next morning the farmer harnessed old Billy, and dressed in his Sunday best he took the east road over the "mountain." He returned late in the afternoon.

The announcement made at the tea table was startling to at least one hearer.

"I have seen your uncle, Jasper!"

The boy's face paled, but the farmer's next words were reassuring.

"He was inclined at first to be a little ugly, but after I'd had my say he cooled down a trifle, and I fancy he won't give you any further trouble. You can stay here just as long as you please."

"I knew there was something wrong about that boy," said grandma, with a triumphant nod towards the radiant Jasper. "Depend on it, Lowly, the Lord sent him!"

A Washington Beauty's Career.

A Washington letter of recent date contains the following: A most distressing affair recently occurred in the suicide of Captain Edward Wright, son of Judge "Jack" Wright, who was recently convicted and fined for his assault on Secretary Delano, and then graciously pardoned by the President. Captain Wright was one of the finest officers in the ordnance corps, and his improvements and experiments in his line have gained him great credit. Two years ago he met at the Arkansas Hot Springs the beautiful Bessie Paschal, daughter of a noted Texas lawyer, and divorced wife of Frank Gassaway. A more fascinating and lovely woman is seldom seen than she, and after a two weeks' acquaintance the pair were married.

Three months ago they separated, and since then Captain Wright had been depressed and gloomy. After a painful interview with her last week they parted finally, she winging her way to Philadelphia and fresh fortunes, and he ending his unhappy life by a pistol shot from his own hand. The career of his wife has been something remarkable. Seldom outside of novels and old memoirs do we know of a woman exerting such power over men by the mere spell of beauty. Graybeards and callow youths have worshiped her, and grave politicians and professional men gone wild. As a young lady she was a belle, and as a lovely widow she exerted a more potent power. Don Cameron at one time was announced as about to marry her, and list of his comrades is a long one. A graceful and perfect figure, and a most lovely smile, first impresses one on seeing her, but the indescribable charm, the strange fascination of her ways, the witchery and magic of her, are too evanescent and intangible for prose. Her beauty, her life and her fortune would need the worldly, gushing pen of "Ouida" to portray some sides of it; for others the profound analysis of George Elliot could hardly suffice. As a figure in the social world she is destined to reappear, and those who have watched the amazing incidents of her life since she first entered Washington a precocious young wife of sixteen, will not be surprised at any sequel.

Anecdotes of Horace Greeley.

There were two great peculiarities of his intellectual constitution, not often found together. He was at once speculative and practical. He had a boundless hospitality for new opinions, which he desired at once to submit to the ordeal of actual experiment. But I think that he found out the failures just as soon as anybody; and certainly no one could comment upon them with drier sarcasm or more good-humored frankness. If he had started a Fourier-phalanx he would have been the first to discover the weak working points. I remember him pulling out of his pocket a small bottle of sorghum sugar, containing about five ounzes, and exhibiting it, half-sheepishly and half triumphantly, as the net production of his cultivation of that new plant. For a mean act he had no mercy; for a clumsy or careless one, but little; but his fund of good nature was indomitable. He once, for some reason, reported a dinner in the Tribune, and told the public that among the beverages provided were "Heidsick, claret, port, champaigne and other wines." When he was chaffed about this by those who took such liberties sometimes, he only laughed and said, "Well, I am the only man in the Tribune office who could have made such a mistake as that," which I am afraid was literally true. Almost always overworked, he was naturally irritated by intrusions upon his privacy. For a long time his efforts to cloister himself up were, I am bound to say, humiliating failures. All sorts of people with a variety of bees in their bonnets tried to evade the slightest barrier to get into his presence, and interrup his industry—people with machines of perpetual motion; with theories about spiritualism; with notions about the next election; with business plans only requiring a small loan to launch them upon the full tide of dividend paying experiment. There were others with a passionate desire to borrow small or large sums of money; with anxiety to become writers upon the Tribune; with manuscripts which they wished to have recommended to some publisher of books; with new religions; with schemes for the abolition of every religion whatever; with mining stocks sure to pay a thousand per cent; with stories of personal destitution harrowing to listen to, yet only requiring the loan of a few shillings to enable the petitioner to go to his friends; widows whose sole claim upon him or upon anybody was that they were widows; orphans, sometimes conspicuously well grown, who had nothing to plead but their orphanage; Irishmen who had lost everything in a desperate attempt to give the green isle a better government; negroes who, perhaps, were born free, and were merely fugitives from Maine or Massachusetts—all these and many others beseiged the sanctum, and devised tricks for swindling its occupant. I am satisfied that if Mr. Greeley could have locked his door and kept it locked, he would have died a much richer man. He would try sometimes to be extremely stern and repellant, but it was always a lamentable failure.

I happened to witness one interview which was sufficiently amusing. A widow, or at least a woman man in black, wanted to go somewhere or set up a school, or start a mission in some far away region of Africa, or do something for sewing girls—never mind what. Mr. Greeley, who was up to his eyes in work, repeatedly told her to go away, and kept on writing. But going away was the last thing the petticoated philanthropist proposed to do. She kept on talking, and Mr. Greeley kept on writing as well as he could; until at last in sheer desperation he rushed to the speaking tube which led to the counting room and bawled querulously through it, "S——, for mercy sake, send me five dollars!" The money came up, and having thrust it into her hand, and resolutely discouraged the long speech of thanks which she instantly began to make, Mr. Greeley half bowed and half put her out of the little room, and went back to his work with a complacent smile illuminating his excellent face. He had purchased his time, and had paid a pretty good price for it.—C. T. Congdon.

Expensive Singing.

Patti has queer notions of pecuniary honesty as well as of matrimonial fidelity, if what is told below of her transactions with Baron Hirsch, the new financial swell of Paris, is true. After she had sung for the Princess de Sagan for her $2,000, of course Hirsch had to engage her. Patti put up her price to $4,000, on the ground that Sagan was one person and Hirsch another. Having no other claim to distinction than his money, Hirsch said: "All right," and proceeded to build a new theater for the occasion. One can fancy his amazement and surprise on the morning of his grand feast, when he was waited on by Patti's manager, Mirelli, who told him that he, Mirelli, had a contract for the exclusive use of Patti's voice, and that he proposed to be paid for these outside concerts. It was merely a question of how much, and he let the bourse baron off with $2,000, so that the appearance of Patti at the Hirsch reception cost the host just $6,000.

ONE might suppose, from the heavy verdict awarded to Colonel Harrold ($30,000) for injurier sustained in a collision on the New York Elevated Railroad, that it is worth more to be jammed or smashed up on one of these high running trains, than to be ditched or pitched over an embankment on an ordinary road. But the principle which governs is the same in each case. The extent of the injury is the measure of damages, provided the company is at fault. Harrold's case was a peculiar one. He sustained a concussion of the spine, which induced paralysis, and claimed that his mental powers had been hopelessly impaired, thus incapacitating him for business, and leaving him a complete wreck, mentally and physically. The company has appealed from the award as excessive, but, if the facts be as alleged, the conclusion of most men would be that the company is getting off cheaply enough. No money could compensate for such injuries.

THE United States Courts in Iowa have been forced to close for want of funds. The Marshal had already advanced $10,000 to keep legal machinery in operation, but he is unable to pay any more out of his own pocket for that purpose. The courts may go to the dogs so far as the Democratic Congress is concerned. There will be no money to pay the marshals until the President signs the BAYARD bill. That may be this year, as it is strongly suspected that he will veto the bill if passed in its present shape.

DR. HALL'S ELECTRIC BELTS.

For the cure of all nervous diseases without the least derangement of the patient's habits or daily occupation. This appliance exerts powerful and beneficial influence throughout the whole frame: is applicable to either sex, and affords instantaneous relief in the following diseases:

Rheumatism,
Neuralgia,
Dyspepsia,
Lumbago,
General Debility,
Headaches,
Dizziness,
Impotency,
Spermatorrhœa,
Sexual Exhaustion,
Self Abuse,
Premature Decay, &c.

These belts are the result of the profound research and experiment in Electro-Therapeutics, and by their peculiar construction, a continuous "galvanic current" is generated, which permeates the whole frame, and especially envelops the suffering parts with its gentle influence. This current assimilates closer to the nervous fluid than anything known to medical science—hence its potency as a curative agent.

Most especially is the application of electricity in this form beneficial to those disorders arising from youthful indiscretion, sexual excess, or dissipations of any kind, whereby the procreative powers are lessened and Impidency threatened. No false delicacy or sense of shame should prevent the sufferer, subject to restless nights, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, neuralgia, dimness of sight and other symptoms of nervous and physical detility, applying to the undersigned for relief.

These belts are light, perfectly flexible, and easily adjusted, all of which, together with their cheapness, renders them superior to any other form, for the application of electricity, medicinally.

☞ 50,147 of these belts were sold in Europe in the year 1876.

"Electricity is Life,"

And no remedy can be compared to it for the treatment of IMPOTENCE and loss of nervous vitality.

This belt is recommended by the most eminent physiologists of this country and Europe.

"Ingenious, wonderful—a deathblow to the old system of drugging."—London (Eng.) Lancet.

"You have perfected a great blessing on suffering humanity." — Dr. Richardson, London, England.

"I cheerfully recommend Dr. Hall's Electric Belt, and consider it one of the greatest blessings to mankind that has been put before the public."—Dr d'Barr, Paris, France.

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health. It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.

Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.

For nearly forty years AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.

The State College and its New President.

The long-wished-for and much-needed new president of the Pennsylvania State College has been found, and takes charge of the institution in person to-day. We have reason to believe that he will be heartily welcomed by the students, and by our citizens generally. There is no institution in our vicinity in which the people of this town have so active an interest, and the fact that it is to have a new, vigorous, and efficient head, is a fact of the first importance.

The new president is Mr. Joseph Shortlidge, A. M., a brother of our townsman, Mr. Wm. Shortlidge. He is a native of Chester county, in this State, and comes from the best of Quaker stock—which has given our State and Nation some of their most distinguished men.

The higher part of his education was obtained at Yale and Middletown colleges, at the latter of which he graduated. He is in the very prime of active life, somewhat younger than his brother, our genial fellow townsman. He has been a teacher for over twenty years, mostly as principal of academic institutions, which he has founded and successfully conducted. He has always been remarkable for the success which has attended his endeavors, and the qualities which conduce to it are just what is wanted in our college. Those he has, but he needs the co-operation of our citizens to insure the best results. He comes here, more recently, from Maplewood Institute, Concordville, Delaware Co.

Obituary.

SARAH JANE GRAMLEY.

Sarah Jane, wife of Samuel Gramley, was born in Miles township, Centre county, Pa., March 15, 1832. She lived in her native place till her death, which occurred May 18, 1880, aged 48 years, 2 months and 3 days.

She was brought into covenant with God by holy baptism in her infancy, and in her sixteenth year was received into the Lutheran church as a full member, by confirmation, by Rev. Chas. Ries. She was married August 7th, 1849, in which relation she lived nearly thirty-one years. One son and one daughter preceded her to the eternal world, leaving three sons and two daughters, and the husband, to mourn their loss. She professed to have experienced a change of heart, by conversion to God, in 1852, which profession she proved by a consistent and exemplary christian life ever since. Her seat in the Sunday school, prayer meeting, and in the house of God, was never vacant unless prevented by Providence. Her disease was, consumption, brought about by several severe attacks of pneumonia, which preyed severely upon her during the last seven months, about five of which she was almost entirely bed-fast. Almost from the beginning of her sickness it seemed to have appeared to her that it would terminate in death, as she frequently, when speaking of her disease and medicine, would remark, "This severe cough no doubt will take me to my grave." She bore her sufferings with great patience and christian resignation, often remarking, "I thank God through Jesus that He sustains me and gives me grace to bear this all." When asked whether she would not prefer to remain yet with her family, the reply invariably was, "O! just as God wills—His will be done, not mine." A few days before her death, having called all her children to her bedside, after giving them counsel and advice, and earnestly urging them to meet her in heaven, she remarked to her husband, "Now I am satisfied—now I can go home in peace." She was conscious to the end. When she was asked, just fifteen minutes before her last breath, "Is thy Savior still with thee ?" she in an audible whisper replied, "O! yes," at the same time nodding assent. She died happy in the Lord, with the expressions upon her lips, "O! how long !" "Come, Lord Jesus, and take me home." A FRIEND.

What Ails You ?

Is it a disordered liver giving you a yellow skin or costive bowels, which have resulted in distressing Piles or do your kidneys refuse to perform their functions? If so your system will soon be clogged with poisons. Take a few doses of Kidney-Wort and you'll feel like a new man—nature will throw off every impediment and each organ will be ready for duty.

RE-WORKING BUTTER.—Hundreds of tons of butter are bought every year, worked over by dealers, colored up and sold for double the price paid the farmers. This fact should convince farmers that they should put their own butter into the best shspe for market and so realize all they can from it. It must have the bright golden color of June, which nothing but Wells, Richardson & Co.'s perfected butter color can give. Use this color, pack your butter in the best manner, and you will get the top price.

—The Junior Order of United American Mechanics will picnic in Valentines' grove, near the toll gate, on Saturday, June 19th, the proceeds to be devoted to the benefit of Logan Council. A dancing floor will be provided for all those who desire to dance, and all kinds of refreshments furnished on the grounds. This being the first picnic of the season, it will doubtless be largely attended.

—Mr. N. S. Bailey, the writer of local happenings for the Democrat, left here on Thursday for Galesburg, Illinois, on a visit to his brother. —The commencement exercises at the State College will take place during the week beginning on the 29th of June. Dr. G. O. Caldwell, of Cornell University, will deliver the Alumni oration. Milton L. Lytle, Esq., has been invited to deliver the oration at the reunion of the Washington Literary Society.

—Farmers, bring your wheat to us; we are paying $1.25 per bushel today, and will continue to pay it as long as the market in the east will warrant us in doing so.

The Monster of Monsters—Welsh & Sand's Great Show.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat says of Welsh and Sands Great Show: "As far as our advices reach everybody looked on tip-toe with eager and well founded anticipations of a day and evening full of wonderful sights, and worlds of fun. Yesterday, for long ere the sun deigned to show his face, the Union depot, streets and avenues leading thereto was one solid mass of human flesh swaying to and fro watching the unloading of Welsh & Sands' great show, which is entirely new and undeniably leads the van in magnitude. Long before nine o'clock thousands of people filled the streets along the line of march which had been published in these columns to witness the most gorgeous and sensational free street parade ever given in this city. In the afternoon their enormous tents were filled to their utmost capacity, to witness an exhibition of more rare wild beasts, birds, reptiles and marine wonders and a greater number of thrilling, novel and ludicrous Equestrian and gymnastic feats and animal acts and antics, than ever before seen in this city, in any five shows put together, What a host of genuine features. They have combined ample capital with every adjunct of modern science to gather in the most notable of living curiosities and muscular phenomena from the uttermost parts of the earth, and to present them with every elegant accessory that can devise to impart attractive magnificence to both spectacular display and orenic performance, including the marvelous steam Electric Light.

It is the first show in our recollection that has ever exhibited more under their canvass than pasted on the bill boards, and our advice would be to those who were unable to get tickets in the great jam, or gain admission last evening to try it again this afternoon and evening, as this is positively the last day. Will exhibit at Bellefonte, Monday June 14th.

Card from J. H. Myers.

In retiring from the Bush House, I wish to thank the public generally for their patronage and their kind influence which has enabled me to largely increase the patronage of this favorite hotel, and make it not only profitable but desirable. In the new proprietor, Mr. D. P. Peters, we have secured a man of large and favorable experience, who is able, willing and determined to make the Bush House the leading hotel in Central Pennsylvania for commercial travelers, a home for Centre county farmers and a favorite summer resort for strangers. To this end Mr. Bush is newly furnishing and refitting the hotel in first-class style from top to bottom.

All persons having claims against me will please present them immediately for payment. J. H. MYERS.

HONOR FROM EUROPE.—It is conceded on all sides that Dr. Ayer's Pills are above comparison with other medicines. Uniting the best elements known to the chemist, they are particularly effective against the numerous stomachic disorders for which they are recommended as a cure. These pills are so mild, yet searching, that they are often prescribed by doctors who otherwise do not favor patent medicines. Indeed, with the fruits of Dr. Ayer's genius in the shape of Pills, Sarsaprilla, Ague Cure and Cherry Pectorial, one might with impunity travel through the swamps of tropical America, or follow Stanley on his travels through the interior of Africa.—Amsterdam Nieuws van den day.

London (England) Academy: "It seems to have no difficulty in keeping its position at the head of the periodical literature of the United States."

THE DOMESTIC MONTHLY.—With the arrival of warm weather, and the probable approach of still warmer weather, the Domestic Monthly presents its attractive list of fashionable and useful articles appropriate to the season. The color plate represents a simple, tasteful princesse dress, two fabrics being combined in such a way as to represent a skirt and a polonaise. In general effect this drapery is peculiarly attractive.

In the literary department a new serial entitled "Bertine, an Episode," by Ellis Conway, is begun. Among the other authors represented by contributions in prose or verse are Mrs. Merighi, Mrs. Howell, Howard Glyndon, Florence B. Getchell and others.

The very popular feature of a prize competition regarding a choice of patterns is continued, the successful competitors for the May list being announced, and the new feature of money prizes for the June competition being introduced.

The Domestic Monthly is published by Blake & Company, corner of Broadway and 14th street, New York, at $1.50 per year, inclusive of pattern premium. Specimen copies 15 cents.

We have received from the Leonard-Scott publishing company, 41 Barclay street, New York, the Edinburgh and Westminster Reviews for April and Blackwood's Magazine for May. The general character of these famous literary works is so well known that we need not say much about them, as our readers have so often read our words of praise for them that anything we could say would seem like a repetition. We can say this, however, that the numbers now before us are equal to any of their predecessors, and as full of good reading as they can be. No intelligent man or family should be without them. This company republish the London Quarterly, Edinburgh, Westminster and British Quarterly Reviews and Blackwood's Magazine. The price per year for one is $4, or they can all be had for $15, and no intelligent man would begrudge the money.

FROM the Rockport, Ind., Banner. There is no medicine in the world which has gained such fame as ST. JACOBS OIL: this is, however, not in the least astonishing, when we consider its truly wonderful curative powers. Mr. F. Rodenberg, of Grandview, called at our office last week and related the following circumstance: I suffered with Rheumatism for over six years, consulted many physicians and tried hundreds of remedies, but without avail. Having seen ST. JACOBS OIL advertised in your paper, and heard of some most astonishing cures I sent to Rockport for a bottle of the OIL, and used it according to directions. The relief I felt was almost "electric." I got better at once, and now there is not a trace of Rheumatism left in my body.

—On the 12th ult., Samuel Rice, a car driver in the employ of Valentines & Co., while employed in coupling cars at the iron works, near this place, had his arm caught between the bumpers and was disabled for eight days. He carried an accident policy with W. B. Rankin, agent for the Fidelity and Casualty Co., of New York. The agent sent off his claim on the 24th ult., and on the 29th Mr. Rice had a check for $11.50, his idemnity being at the rate of $10 per week. If any one desires to insure against accidents in a good paying company, and with an agent who attends to all claims promptly, go to Wm. B. Rankin, Bellefonte, Pa.

Bellefonte Republican.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

THE HANLAN-RILEY boat race does not seem to have been much more of a contest than the Courtney affair. The time was slower, and it is evident that Hanlan was able to walk away with the laurels, without the necessity of any especial struggle on his part.

THE Springfield (Ill.) Journal says the Republicans of Illinois will give a hearty and united support to the nominee of the Chicago Convention, and that there are not the slightest grounds for apprehending any bitterness or dissention after the candidate has been named.

COURTS of arbitration for the settlement of business disputes are being experimented upon under the direction of the Board of Trade of Manchester. It is a rather serious commentary upon the present legal system to learn that the principle object of this measure is reduction of expense and the secondary one to have a court which is better informed than the regular one, on the subjects submitted to its decision.

SUPERVISOR WHITE and his assistants are fully prepared and ready to begin the business of taking the census of Philadelphia. His position pays him the magnificent sum of $500 for the entire term, and in addition to the regular duties, he has had the additional and onerous one devolved upon him of appointing seven hundred subordinates from among six thousand applicants and giving satisfaction to all.

THE town of Centralia, Ill., is over run with sleek and saucy tramps, fully three hundred of the pesky varmits being congregated in that vicinity. They are armed with razors and revolvers, and exercise a terrorism over the people which seems to have paralyzed what manhood there is in the town, and made its inhabitants easy victims to their rapacity. A dozen resolute men, well armed, would make it hot for the gang in a few hours' time.

COURTNEY, the nerveless oarsman, has found a defender in the Boston Post, which thinks he is to be pitied rather than blamed. "The last time he rowed against Hanlan grave charges of fraud were made against him, and even his friends at length believed them. The matter was cleared up, however, and this time he was rowing to retrieve his reputation." There is force in this. We believe Courtney's humiliating fizzle was occassioned by his lack of nerve and was not a part of a bargain. But it was none the less discouraging to his friends, for all that.

HON. GEO. S. BOUTWELL, of Massachusetts, will probably be the candidate of the Grant men for permanent president of the Chicago convention. Senator Conkling has been mentioned in that connection, but he prefers to remain on the floor. Senator Conkling will nominate General Grant for President, General Garfield will perform that service for Secretary Sherman, and Congressman Frye will name Senator Blaine. As all three are fine speakers, the convention will be treated to an oratorial display such as is seldom witnessed in any one nominating or deliberative body.

THE stock market continues to reel under the influence of the Reading railway failure. This is only another illustration of the universal disposition of the speculative classes to overdo everything. Sixty days ago in the face of a stringent money market they were talking of a grand bull movement, although the market was already much inflated. Now when the shrinkage of prices has been general and the money market is very easy, the suspension of a road which has been known to be bankrupt for years, sends the whole stock list into a panic! Truly the methods of the alleged reasoning powers of the stock speculator are past finding out.

THE famine in Asiatic Turkey is reported as indescribably appalling. That in Ireland bears no resemblance to it, since the more destitute are dying in masses. A letter written by the Archbishop of the Syrians, under date of April 5th, at Mossoul, has been received at the American legation at Constantinople, and telegraphed to this country. It describes the sufferings of the impoverished masses as heartrending. Some have sought to prolong their miserable existence by eating corpses, but most of these become ill in consequence and die in great agony at last. An appeal for aid is made in behalf of those who are still struggling between life and death.

Interesting Notes from Milesburg.

The extremely hot weather does not seem to check the labors of the farmer or mechanic. All seem to be very busy at their different avocations, shaving and hammering away at something, preparing for a wet day.

Our three stores are doing a good business; their delivery wagons are on the go continually, delivering goods to their different customers.

A. M. McClain, in connection with his store, has leased the Campbell planing mill, located in Central City, and under his direct supervision keeps the machinery moving and gives employment to quite a number of men. He has attached to the mill a shingle machine, which is kept continually running. Shingles and lapboards are extensively manufactured, as will be evidenced from the appearance of the surroundings of the mill. where there are large stacks of shingles and boards, while daily shipments are being made.

C. K. Essington, Jr.'s axe works, which have been idle for the last month undergoing repairs, are again running, with the addition of three new fires. He thinks he will be able to fill all orders, which heretofore he could not. He is in good spirits, and expects to do a lucrative business.

James B. Proudfoot has his furniture rooms restocked with an assortment of the latest styles of first class furniture, at the lowest prices. Undertaking is promptly attended to. Jim feels good, and is hopeful of a prosperous year. He thinks Gen. Grant is certain of the nomination for the Presidency at the Chicago convention, which he says will result in many Democratic funerals.

C. F. Herlacher is doing a thriving business in the renovation of old feathers. He expects to make Milesburg his headquarters for some time yet.

I am sorry to say that the foundry and machine shops are lying idle. Whether or not it is a lack of energy on the part of the proprietors I cannot say. The facilities for manufacturing agricultural implements or other machinery cannot be excelled. The water power by which the works are run, are equal to any in the State.

Geo Rider & Son, blacksmiths, have connected with them Mr. McCollum, wagonmaker, and who are kept busy making new and repairing old wagons. Their new work is made from the best material, and for durability and neatness they defy competition.

I almost forgot John M. Wagner & Sons, proprietors of the Central City flouring mills, — doing a thriving a business. Their mill is new, with all the latest improved machinery for manufacturing flour. They are kept busy all the time, and defy Central Pennsylvania to compete with them in making flour. Their trade extends west in the Bald Eagle valley as far as Port Matilda, and northwest as far as Karthaus, which is an evidence that the work is well done, and a good yield from that which is taken there. John M. is now giving his attention more particularly to his farm one-half mile east of Milesburg. I cannot give the number of acres of the farm, but it is considered the model farm of the Bald Eagle valley. He has with his assistants, Mr. Wm. Garbrick, principal, put out 20 acres of oats, 25 acres of corn, and other crops. He has about 45 acres of wheat to cut, 20 acres of grass, all of which promises a bountiful yield. John says he is a Blaine man, but if Grant is nominated he is a Grant man.

James A. McClain, our obliging ticket agent, is still a Democrat, and a hard worker for the cause.

Our friend Kohlbecker, proprietor of the Central City Hotel, is up and about and prepared to entertain the traveling public in the most hospitable manner. He has purchased an organ lately, since then we have treats of select music every evening

I will close by saying our community has been blessed with good health this spring. PHIL.

The Duc d'Morny's definition of a polite man is the hardest to realize of any yet given. "A polite man," said he, "is one who listens with interest to things he knows all about, when they are told by a person who knows nothing about them."

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—The subscriptions in this city to aid the sufferers by the Milton fire now amounts to $41,500, of which there is still a balance on hand of $15,000.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—In the Senate Mr. Gordon announced that he had resigned his seat and moved that his successor be sworn in. The credentials of Governor Brown were then received and he was sworn in, and after taking the modified oath he took his seat.

The pension deficiency bill was then taken up and discussed, read a third time and passed.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The fifty-first anniversary of the Brooklyn Sunday-school union was celebrated to-day, and the schools attached to all churches in Brooklyn, except Roman Catholic, were in line with flags and banners.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Secretary Sherman has instructed the assistant treasurer at New York to purchase $3,000,000 United States bonds for the sinking fund.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The house met at 10 o'clock, the succeeding hour up to 11 belonging technically to Monday's session. That hour was spent in discussing the sundry civil bill, all items for public buildings being disposed of as reported, and all amendments for new buildings being ruled out on points of order.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—The coal firm of Bines & Sheaff, 114 South Fourth street, the retail agents of the Philadelphia and Reading coal and iron company, suspended temporarily to-day. Payment had been withheld by the firm of notes of the suspended company which had been indorsed by Bines & Sheaff, and it was deemed advisable to discontinue all payments until the status of such notes can be decided. The business of the firm will in the meantime be continued as usual. Bines & Sheaff have ten retail coal yards, including a large wharf on Windmill island, where steamers are supplied. Their relations with the suspended companies have been very intimate.

MAFIELD, Ind., May 26.—Harry K. Rennoble, for the past six years clerk and book-keeper in the Mafield bank, has proven a defaulter to the amount of several thousand dollars. It is a case of misplaced confidence, as he enjoyed the highest esteem and respect of his employers. Rennoble's parents are wealthy, and the deficiency will, in all probabily, be promptly made up.

PETERSBURG, May 25.—During the past two days this section of the State has been visited by the heaviest rains that have fallen for many months, bringing great relief to the growing crops, especially corn and oats, which were greatly damaged by the protracted drought. All farming operations have been greatly retarded by the drought, and in many instances, farmers, in order to keep plants alive, have been compelled to water them with spring water.

MITCHELL, D. T., May 26.—A cyclone passed through this place at about 7 o'clock last evening, doing much damage to person and property. Jacob Luther, of New Alamakee, Iowa, and Henry Smith, a colored boy of Kane county, Ill., were killed, and Fred Frances, of Decotah, Ia., badly wounded. Many buildings were blown down in this village, all of which were built this spring. Most of the frame buildings near the town were blown to pieces, but the extent of the damage outside of the town is yet unknown.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 26.—The great trial of Nihilists has been concluded. After the public proceedings yesterday the members of the court-martial remained in consultation eleven hours. They re-entered the court room at half-past three o'clock this morning, when the president sentenced Michaeloff and Saburoff to be hanged. Dr. Weimer at fifteen years' hard labor in the mines; Castenanstay to twenty years hard labor: Berdinkoff to eight years' hard labor, and Lawentral to ten years' hard labor. The women Malmawski and Thanlanoff were banished to Tabalski. The sentences will be submitted to Gen. Laris Melikoff, chief of the supreme executive commission, for his confirmation.

DOVER, May 25.—The indications this morning were that there would be quite a lively fight between the Saulsbury and Bayard factions attending the Democratic State Convention; but when the body was organized everything went off smoothly and quietly. Colonel B. Lore, of Wilmington, was elected temporary chairman, and the temporary organization was subsequently made permanent.

Delegates to Cincinnati were chosen. A resolution instructing the delegation to vote for Senator Bayard for President was adopted, as was also one recommending the National Convention to adhere to the two-third rule. The proceedings were not once interrupted by objections or debate, and lasted only about two hours.

The delegation to Cincinnati, it is believed, will vote as a unit for Mr. Bayard, notwithstanding the fact that some of the members are personally antagonistic to him.

LONDON, May 27.—Clement Satterthwaite & Son, dealers in the American department on the stock exchange have failed with heavy liabilities. They were bearers of Philadelphia & Reading railroad stock.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The body of Frederick Emil Brieman, the German baker who on Thursday night last murdered his wife by cutting her throat, was found last night in the East river, at the foot of 19th street, with his throat cut from ear to ear. The body was positively identified and was removed to the morgue. It will probably be buried in the potters field, where Mrs. Brieman was buried a few days ago.

DUBUKE, Iowa, May 27.—On Tuesday night Byron Reinhold shot and killed James Delany at Farley. They had quarrelled and Delany had beaten Reinhold unmercifully. Reinhold went home and procured a shot gun loaded with buckshot, and as Delany was riding by on horseback he emptied the contents of both barrels into the latter's stomach. Delany died in two hours. Reinhold surrendered to the officers. Both parties were bad characters.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., May 27.—Thomas C. Thurston, who killed his business partner on Jnuary 31st and was afterwards acquitted, met D. R. Anthony, editor of the Times, on the street yesterday afternoon and fired two shots at him. Neither one took effect on Anthony, but one ball struck a young man employed in the office inflicting a severe scalp wound and the other struck Lucien Baker, a prominent lawyer, and passed through his body. He is the lawyer who defended Thurston when the latter was tried for murder. The police are obliged to secrete Thurston to prevent his being lynched. The physicians have some hope of Baker's recovery.

WASHINGTON, May 27. — About 30,000 people attended the boat race last evening. Hanlan took the lead at the start and increased it as he pleased, winning by three-sixtenths of a mile in 36:24. Riley's time was 37:21¼. Hanlan having won the toss surprised every one by choosing the Washington side of the course, the Virginia side having been his choice in the previous race. The change was made it is said, with a desire to accord Riley whatever advantage there was in having the Virginia side.

Hanlan stopped rowing several times during the race to bathe his face and head with a sponge, but did not allow Riley to approach nearer than three boat lengths. At the conclusion of the race Hanlan rowed over to Riley's boat, and victor and vanquished shook hands cordially.

LONDON, May 28.—During the sojourn at Grand Bassam of the passengers and crews of the three boats belonging to the foundered mail steamer America, which were picked up on the 25th of April by the American bark Emma F. Harriman, from Accra to Winnebah, they were not unmindful of their rescuers. An address, headed by Hon. John Patterson, who lost his life by the upsetting of a boat from the British steamer Senegal (which stranded after taking on board the ship-wrecked party at Grand Bassaw for the Grand Canary Islands), was signed by all those rescued, and will be transmittdd to Captain Upton, of the bark, together with a purse of guineas with which to purchase a small memento of their deliverance for himself and chief officers.

WASHIMGTON, May 28.—The papers consisting of bill, answer and cross-bill, in the Christiancy divorce suit were filed yesterday. Mrs. Christiancy is charged with infidelity, and she charges Mr. Christiancy with having brutally treated her on many occasions, endangering life at one time when her condition was delicate with knocking her down at Lansing, Mich., and with forcing her, when he was intoxicated by opium and liquors to flee from the American legation in Peru and take refuge in a neighboring yard. On this occasion, it is alleged, he furthermore threatened to blow her brains out. His most recent act of brutality, she adds, lies in his attempt to obtain a divorce on the ground that she has been unfaithful as a wife. She prays in turn for a divorce, alimony and the expenses of this suit. Mr. Christiancy's counsel, it is said, will make no defense to the motion for allowance during the pendency of the suit, but will ask that it be graded to suit Mrs. Christiancy's condition before her marriage.

PITTSBURG, May 28. — Yesterday morning Samuel Dixon, Esq., attorney for the receivers of the Reading railroad, appeared before Judge McKennan, of the United States Circuit Court, in chambers, and applied for an order authorizing the receivers to borrow $1,000,000 for the payment of wages of employes and interest falling due on June 1st. He submitted a preliminary statement of the condition of the company, showing its assets and liabilities, but stated that a full report would be made in a short time by the receivers. The court granted the order applied for, and Mr. Dixon started for home in the afternoon. A transcript of the figures could not be obtained for publication.

READING, Pa., May 28. — Edward Hall, Mike Walsh and Robert White, three notorious New York forgers, were arrested at the depot here yesterday afternoon by Pinkerton's agent, charged with counterfeiting the script issued by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company. $7,700 worth of the bogus certificates were found upon them. They were lodged in Berks county jail. Hall is a noted forger, and Walsh served a term in the Eastern Penitentiary for the Wellsboro bank robbery. White is not so well known.

LARAMIE, Wy., May 29.—A messenger just arrived from North Park reports a large band of Indians in the park on Michigan river. Two men named Carr and Dow were supposed to have been murdered, as they were last seen near where the Indians were, and their horses were afterwards seen among those belonging to the Indians. The Indians are over one hundred miles from their reservation. Much excitement prevails among the settlers.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 28.—A dispatch from Sacramento says that yesterday the supreme court rendered a decision in the Kearney case releasing him. The hearing was on the habeas corpus appealed from the superior court of San Francisco, where the decision of the police court putting Kearney in the house of correction for abusive language was sustained.

HANIBAL, Mo., May 28.—Mr. Tilden loses Missouri. The delegates stand eighteen for and twelve against him. Messrs. Vest, Woodson and Oday, delegates-at-large, are anti-Tilden. The resolutions in his favor were killed in the committee. The delegates go uninstructed, except to support the two-thirds rule.

Bob Ingersoll's Speech to the Jury.

The Colonel was lately employed in a case which involved the manufacture of ardent spirits, and in his speech to the jury he used the following language:

"I am aware there is a prejudice against any man engaged in the manufacture of alcohol. I believe from the time it issues from the coiled and poisonous worm in the distillery until it empties into the hell of death, that it is demoralizing to everybody that touches it from the source to where it ends. I do not believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without being prejudiced against the crime. All they have to do is to think of the wrecks along the stream of death, of suicides, of the insanity, of the poverty, of the destruction, of the little children tugging at the breast, of weeping and despairing wives asking for bread, of the man struggling with imaginary serpents produced by this devilish thing; and when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the asylums, of the prisons, and of the scaffolds on either bank, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this vile stuff called alcohol. Intemperance cuts down youth in its vigor, manhood in its strength, and age in its weakness. It breaks the father's heart, bereaves the doting mother, extinguishes natural affection, eraces conjugal love, blots out filial attachments, and blights parental hope and brings premature age in sorrow to the grave. It produces weakness not strength; sickness, not health; death, not life. It makes wives widows, children orphans, fathers fiends, and all paupers. It feeds rheumatism, nurses gout, welcomes epidemics, invites cholera, imports pestilence, and embraces consumption, and covers the land with misery, idleness and crime. It engenders controversies, fosters quarrels and cherishes riots. It crowds your penitentiaries and furnishes victims to the scaffold. It is the blood of the gambler, the element of the burglar, the prop of the highwayman, and the support of the midnight incendiary. It countenances the liar, respects the thief, esteems the blasphemer. It violates obligations, reverences fraud, hates love, scorns virtue and innocence. It incites the father to butcher his helpless offspring, and the child to grind the parental axe. It burns up men, consumes women, detests life, curses God and despises heaven. It suborns witnesses, nurses perfidy, defiles the jury box and stains the judicial ermine. It bribes voters, disqualifies votes, corrups elections, pollutes our institutions, and endangers the government. It degrades the citizen, debases the legislator; dishonors the statesman and disarms the patriot. It brings shame, not honor; terror, not safety; despair, not hope; misery, not happiness; and with the malevolence of a fiend, calmly surveys its frightful desolation, and unstained with havoc, it poisons felicity, kills peace, ruins morals, wipes out national honor, then curses the world and laughs at its ruin. It does that and more—it murders the soul. It is the sum of all villainies, the father of crimes, the mother of all abominations, the devil's best friend, and God's worst enemy.

A man who undertakes anything and gets left at his own game catches a tartar. The boy who climbs to the top shelf in the pantry does so with the expectation of catching a tart or two.

The old-time Spencer is again occasionally seen on the streets, while specimens of Spencerian penmanship flourish and fade away in the editor's waste basket.

Four more working seasons will be required to complete the Washington monument, and it will cost $680,000 additional to what has been already appropriated.

A Michigan widow who jumped off a load of hay and knocked down a tramp who made fun of her sunbonnet, had three offers of marriage within a week.

The latest style of lady's shoe has a pump foxing below the instep tied with a bow. It would be much better to have a fox pumpking, bowed with the tide.

Is a sure cure for all the ordinary diseases of Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine. It cures and prevents Chicken Cholera. Your cow is certain to yield 25 per cent more and better milk and butter. Stock fattens on one-fourth less feed!

Being in possession of a large number of excellent testimonials, I subjoin a few:

I have been using your Cattle Powder for horses, cows, chickens and pigs, and find it a first class thing.—GEORGE BOND, Germantown, Pa.

Please send me half a gross of Cattle Powder. I have used two packs on my cow and chickens. The cow gave nearly twice the quantity of milk that she did before, and gave twice the amount of butter. My chickens were dying, but were cured immediately after I had used the powder. Yours truly, JONAS PASOUR, Dallas, N. C.

I have used and compared your Cattle Powder with all others, and must say it is the best for horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, &c. I have tried it on poultry for many complaints, with success in every case.—JONATHAN WEAVER, Berrysburg, Pa.

Last summer you sent me a pack of your powder which I gave to my poultry, and have not had one droopy turkey or chicken since.—MRS. WM. KNAPP, Orange, N. Y.

Send me a pack or two of your Cattle Powder. The pack I got from you last winter cured the chicken cholera. I gave some of it to a neighbor and it cured his chickens.—JOHN WILLIAMS, Spruce Vale, Ohio.

Local Small Talk.

—The season for white trousers and Sunday-school picnics is about here.

—A Williamsporter is the owner of a cat that performs to the tune of Pinafore.

—Squads of boys now wend their way towards the mill dam morning and evening.

—Horseback riding is indulged in to a considerable extent in this vicinity this season.

—The court house yard is getting to be quite a popular resort on Sunday for those in search of a cool spot.

—Mr. Henry Wetzell, assistant principal of the public schools, is off on a pleasure tour through Snyder county.

—The first man who brings in a big snake story to this office will receive a quarter's worth of old exchanges.

—It is said there isn't a miner in Houtzdale who would not be glad of the opportunity of going to work at old prices.

—Sneak thieves are reported operating in this vicinity. Barricade your cellar doors and guard your provisions.

—From all we can learn to the contrary Bellefonte will be a nice quiet place for an invalid to spend the Fourth.

—Rebuilding the burned district at Milton has begun. Her citizens are displaying a good deal of pluck and enterprise.

—The swindling fertilizer agent is on the road again. Farmers should prepare to give him a warm reception if he comes this way.

—"Who slit Courtney's nerve?" is the question now going the rounds. It looks to us as though a man about the size of Hanlan did it.

—The water pipes are being extended from the corner of Linn and Ridge streets to the residence of M. W. Cowdrick on Linn street.

—Carlisle has an "Orange Blossom Club." If there wasn't such a diversity in names we might think it in league with the "Onion Society" of this place.

—What has become of the "Onion Society?" Such an organization as this—the only one in America, too—should not be allowed to die out by any means.

—Mr. Albert Owens, formerly editor of the Huntingdon Monitor, has been appointed census enumerator for Philipsburg, probably Owen to outside influence.

—An additional heighth of three feet being added to the brick lining of the reservoir to increase the head of water. Mr. H. C. Yearger is superintending the work.

—A slight change has been made in the schedule of the B. E. V. road since Monday. The mail train east now arrives at Bellefonte at 9·51, instead of 10.03, as heretofore.

—Farmers are anxious for more rain. The late drougth left the farming land as dry and hard as a brick, and what rain we have doesn't seem to have moistened it up to any depth.

—John Sourbeck, the fruit and confectionery man, is bound to keep up with the times, and now drives around the street with a new delivery wagon, painted up and lettered in fine style.

—Farmers are selling off their last year's crop of potatoes at remarkably low prices. Isaac Haupt purchased twenty bushels the other day for a box of cigars, or at the rate of about fifteen cents per bushel.

—A colored boy, in playing about the cars at the depot Thursday noon dropped a coupling pin on his bare foot. He resigned his position immediately, and went home on one foot, emitting a dismal howl at every hop.

—Mr. John Hoy is shipping ore from the mine on his farm to the Elmira Steel & Iron Company, at Elmira, N. Y. This mine is pronounced a valuable property, and Mr. Hoy intends to operate it on a large scale.

—The editor of the Democrat don't like the idea of having his hat knocked off by the swinging trousers and ladies' balmorals that are suspended from the signs over the sidewalk on Allegheny street, and calls upon the Council to abate the nuisance.

—Edison has patented an improved phonograph. That's all right, but we'd like to know before he tackles anything else, whether he is going to bring out that electric light or give it up. If something isn't done before long we'll give his old machine a tussel ourself.

—The Williamsport Banner wonders why it is that butter sells for 30 cents a pound up there and only 20 in Bellefonte. It strikes us it's because Williamsport merchants charge just ten cents per pound more than merchants down this way. That's the only way we can explain it.

—A large quantity of dry goods, clothing, etc., have been found secreted among the rocks in a stone quarry near Huntingdon. It is supposed the goods were placed there by a gang of thieves who have been operating in several towns along the line of the railroad.

—The executive committee of the Juniata Valley Printers' Association met at Huntingdon on Saturday and decided to hold a basket picnic at Dell Delight grove, near Hollidaysburg, on Saturday, September 4th. Another meeting will be held June 5th in the Herald office, Tyrone.

—The strike at Houtzdale is at last ended, and everything is moving along as smoothly as before the disturbance. The last of the old miners have gone to work, and at the old prices. The Swedes are not satisfied with the work and are leaving as fast as they can obtain their money.

—A tramp started a fire in Brady township, Huntingdon county, a few days since, and came very near meeting a just fate by being roasted. He was hemmed in by the fire he had made, but unfortunately escaped. He'll get another taste of it one of these days, in all probability.

—Messrs. Holmes & Derr are doing a lively trade in the door-plate business, having all the orders they can fill. They are the neatest and most showy article of the kind in the market, and every owner of a house should have one and be in style. Orders will receive prompt attention.

—Six Harrisburg boys went boating on the Susquehanna on Sunday, week; after rowing about for a while the craft, an old canoe, filled with water and sunk. One boy was drowned, and one or two others narrowly escaped. Moral—always go to meeting on Sundays and do your rowing on week days.

—The local of the Democrat has turned fashion editor, and discourseth learnedly on the subject of tasteful combinations in colors for ladies' costumes. We infer from his remarks that a woman dressed in a green gown with buff overskirt, white hat and gilt feathers, scarlet kids and a tan-colored parasol, would look too ridiculous for anything. Blamed if we don't think so, too.

—The Huntingdon Globe says: Now that the Bedford folks are opposed to having the printers' picnic in that place, we suggest Roaring Springs, Blair county, as the next place, providing the people down the river have no grounds selected. Their wishes should be consulted this year. There is no prettier, more romantic place for a summer excursion than Roaring Springs, Blair county.

—In our report of the death of John Musser, Sr., of Spring township, we stated that he was found dead in bed. We have since learned that this was incorrect. He was in the habit of taking a nap after dinner; on the day of his death his son, Mr. J. J. Musser, assisted him to his room after dinner as usual, and in about fifteen minutes he was found sick. A doctor was sent for, but he died in four hours, with all the family about. He was 87 years, 3 months and 21 days old.

—Some little betting was done among the Bellefonte sports on the Hanlan-Riley boat race. Charlie Heisler bet a five-cent cigar that Hanlan would row the shirt off of Riley; it strikes us, though, that he's out on the cigars, as Riley's shirt was all right when he crossed the line. J. G. Kingsley, the sewing machine man, who seldom engages in anything of the kind, was induced to put up a pint of peanuts on the Canadian, and was trembling in his boots until Thursday morning's papers came in, announcing the result.

It is Thought.

That a handsome fountain in the big spring at the water works would show off to advantage, and add not a little to the attractions of Bellefonte.

That our watering cart is a big institution, and as a dust settler cannot be out-sprinkled by any like contrivance in this section of the country.

That Courtney will come to time yet and wallop that Canadian chap. Amateur sports hereabouts are willing to put up on it.

That the hay crop in Centre county will turn out better than was predicted some time ago.

That Bellefonte will have a drowning sensation one of these days if the small boys are not more careful about getting into deep water at the mill dam.

That Francis Speer will whoop 'er up for Grant this fall, in the event of his nomination, whether the "belt slips off the wheels of industry" or not.

That John Kingsley, the sewing machine man, is interested in something besides sewing machines at Hublersburg.

That if parents would keep their children off the streets at night they wouldn't learn the art of swearing and chewing tobacco so soon.

That at least seven men would like to be captain of the new company now being organized in this place.

That the next census will show a very little increase in the population of Bellefonte over that of 1870.

That if Blaine is nominated at the Chicago convenion the Blaine men hereabouts will get up a big ratification meeting. On the other hand, if it is Grant, it is thought there will be very little enthusiasm manifested.

Copper Ore in Adams County.

A valuable vein of copper ore has been recently discovered near Waynesboro, Adams county, said to yield as much as sixty per cent of pure copper. A county paper says: Mr. Russel has been prospecting for copper for some time past, but with few signs of encouragement until he struck the present vein, and he now feels confident that the thing is a fixed fact. The ore contained in the vein last reached is said by experts to equal that found on the shores of Lake Superior, it yielding as much as sixty per cent. of pure copper. The specimen left at our office would yield about thirty per cent. of this metal. To reach the first vein it requires a shaft sixty-two feet in depth and a tunnel one hundred and forty-four feet in length, whilst to reach the second it requires only a shaft thirty feet in length. We believe that the mountains inclosing the Cumberland Valley are rich in mineral deposits and sooner or later they will yield up their increase much to the joy and comfort of our people.

A Terrible Death.

The Shamokin Herald relates the following: "Between 9 and 10 o'clock on Friday night of last week, Mrs. Mary Jane Thompson, wife of Robert Thompson, residing at Luke Fidler, fell down stairs with a lighted coal oil lamp, which set fire to her clothing. James Thompson, a young man living near, responded to the alarm, and on entering the house found that the unfortunate woman had retreated up stairs, where he found her all ablaze, the flames leaping high above her head. She was burned so badly that at places the flesh actually dropped off her bones. She lingered until about four o'clock Saturday morning, when death came to her relief."

—"Judge Rowe, of Chambersburg, has ordered that hereafter no one but attorneys and law students be permitted inside the bar of the Franklin court house."—Ex.

Every other Judge in the State should follow his example. In Bellefonte the attorneys are often annoyed and hindered in the performance of their duties by outsiders crowding into the bar and appropriating what spare room their is to themselves. As we understand it, the bar is for the exclusive occupancy of the attorneys and their witnesses, jurymen and court officers, and not for those who attend court merely to listen to the proceedings.

Manhood: How Lost How Restored

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

MEMORIAL DAY IN BELLEFONTE.

How the Day was Observed—Streets Thronged with People—The Street Parade—Interesting Ceremonies, Etc.

In the observance of Decoration day in this place on Saturday more spirit and enthusiasm was noticeable in the proceedings than on any like occasion for several years past, and although the civic display was not particularly grand or imposing, the work of decorating the soldiers' graves was faithfully and patriotically performed. All our citizens of a patriotic disposition interested themselves in the matter, and took an active part in perfecting the necessary arrangements for a proper observance of the day.

Gregg Post, G. A. R., which organization had charge of the matter, left nothing undone that could add to the success of the day's proceedings. The officers and a number of the members took hold with a will from the time the first instructions were issued from the Post, and labored as though success depended on the exertions of each individual one, which was the only right way of proceeding. Our citizens, too, feeling that the interest in these annual celebrations in honor of our departed heroes whose services to their country can never be forgotten, should not be allowed to decrease, lent their aid to the good cause in every way within their power. The ladies, also, must not be overlooked for the part they took in furnishing floral contributions—a very important feature, by the way. The scenes about the Post headquarters during the morning were of an animated description. The officers of the Post were flying around here and there, receiving flags and flowers sent in by citizens and arranging the details for the afternoon exercises. Several young ladies who had tendered their services to the committee on flowers, were present engaged in working up the flowers and evergreens into beautiful bouquets and wreaths, that the soldiers' graves might bloom with loveliness, and the setting sun find none undecked. By noon the arrangements for carrying out the programme were about all made, and the weather being clear and cool everybody felt that the afternoon ceremonies would pass off pleasantly and satisfactorily, and as will be seen they were not disappointed.

The banks closed at noon, and the merchants, we are pleased to say, with one or two exceptions, closed their doors during the ceremonies. Early in the afternoon people began to assemble on the Diamond and vicinity, and by three o'clock the sidewalks along the streets through which the procession was to pass, were lined with men, women and children, many of them from out of town, all eager to witness the parade, and anxiously awaiting the start. At half-past three the different organizations began to arrive, and were conducted to positions by Chief Marshal Curtin and his assistants.

Gregg Post, No. 95, formed on Spring street, right resting on High.

Logan Hose Company formed on Howard street, right resting on Spring, at the rear of Gregg Post.

Mountain City Band took up position on corner of Spring and High, and waited on further orders of the marshal.

At a few minutes past four, the organizations having been assigned their proper positions in the line, the order of command was given, and the procession moved in the following order:

Chief Marshal J. I. Curtin.
Mountain City Band—18 pieces.
Gregg Post, G. A. R.—80 men.
Logan Hose Company—35 men.
Assistant Marshals Tate, Brew and Miller.
Orator of the Day and Citizens in Carriages.

The parade, although not extensive as regards numbers, was nevertheless very fine, and as viewed from any available position along the line, presented a pleasing spectacle. The bright, new shirts of the Logan men, with attractive trimmings, showed off to good advantage, and formed a conspicuous feature of the parade. The G. A. R. men turned out well, eighty strong, in uniform, and by their good marching added not a little to the general effect.

Probably four-fifths of the people congregated on the streets followed the procession to the cemetery to witness the ceremonies, which were of an unusually interesting and impressive nature. The following programme which, as will be seen, comprised several new features, was fully carried out:

Address, Post commander.
"In the sweet By-and-Bye," Band.
Quartette, "Blest be the Graves."
Prayer, Rev. Wm. Laurie.
"See that my Grave's kept Green," Band.
"Silently, Tenderly."
Decoration of four special graves within the square, by Comrades Waggoner, Irvin, Love, and Rankin.
Quartette, "We deck their graves alike."
The Comrades, assisted by others, will then strew flowers on all the soldiers grave in the cemetery, advancing at the sound of the bugle, the band playing a dirge.
The "Assembly" will be sounded and the Post will form in proper order.
Oration, by Hon. J. W. Parker.
Hymn, "Blest are the Martyred Dead," in singing which all present are requested to join.
Benediction, by Rev. John Hewitt.

The music, both by band and quartette, was highly appropriate and most excellently rendered, and had the occasion been a less solemn one, would have elicited much applause. After singing "We deck their graves alike," by quartette, the 8th exercise, the work of decorating the soldiers' graves, 87 in number, was performed by Gregg Post, assisted by others, the band playing a solemn dirge. A beautiful wreath and bouquet were laid on each grave, and a flag bearing the name of the deceased soldier and the regiment to which he belonged, erected at its head. After the performance of this duty, at the sound of the bugle, the Post formed in line and the assembly came to order.

The oration, by Hon. J. W. Parker, of Lewistown, was without doubt the finest that has been delivered in this place on any similar occasion for a number of years, and was so pronounced by many who had the pleasure of listening to it. Mr. Parker is a very fluent and captivating speaker, and held the closest attention of his audience throughout. We would like to have presented his discourse, in part, at least, to our readers, but as the gentleman was without his manuscript we are unable to do so. At the conclusion of the exercises the procession reformed and marched out of the cemetery to Howard street, and down Howard street to the Logan hose house where the Logan company was disbanded; the remainder of the procession passed down Spring street to High, up High to Allegheny, and Gregg Post headquarters, where the parade was dismissed, and Bellefonte's demonstration in honor of her daparted heroes was at an end.

Everything passed off pleasantly and smoothly, and during the entire afternoon nothing of any consequence occurred to mar or in any way interfere with the successful carrying out of the programme.

NOTES.

During the march through the cemetery, from the entrance gate to the speaker's stand, the Mountain City Band played a funeral march, executed in a strikingly impressive manner.

A very conspicuous object in the vicinity of the speaker's stand, and which drew forth many an admiring glance, was a monster cross of flowers standing nearly six feet in heighth. A wooden frame in the form of a cross was erected on a mound of earth in close proximity to soldiers' graves, on which was hung the bouquets and wreaths in such a manner as to entirely obscure the framework, and gave it the appearance of a cross of solid flowers. It was a beautiful piece of floral work, and was constructed by several ladies who have shown themselves to be experts in such matters.

During the delivery of Mr. Parker's address the audience was several times annoyed by the ceaseless chattering and giggling of a group of young people who doubtless call themselves ladies and gentlemen. True ladies and gentlemen, however, do not attend such gatherings for the purpose of carrying on flirtations and otherwise enjoying themselves, and if they cannct conduct themselves in a proper manner they should not annoy those who attend from far different motives by their presence.

A committee was appointed to visit the Catholic cemetery during the afternoon and decorate, with flags and flowers, the graves of all soldiers buried therein.

Gregg Post G. A. R. returns thanks to the following named persons for the very liberal gifts of flowers, etc., for decoration purposes:

and all others whose names may have been overlooked.

—Gregg Post, G. A. R., and the Mountain City Band, all in full uniform, attended services at the Methodist church on Sunday in response to a special invitation. Rev. Donahue preached a very interesting sermon appropriate to the occasion. His discourse abounded in patriotic sentiment, and was pronounced one of his finest efforts, The services were poorly attended by the congregation, probably owing to the unfavorable weather.

—Mrs. William Cook, wife of the late Captain Cook, died on Saturday evening last at her residence on Howard street, of heart disease, in her 69th year. Deceased was a kind-hearted, Christian woman and an excellent neighbor, and beloved by all who knew her. She leaves seven grown up children, six sons and one daughter.

—The curb market is looking up a little. Saturday morning nine or ten wagons were in, and there was a very good display of vegetables. Of the nine wagons six brought in beef, which made an abundant supply of that article. Purchasers were numerous, and the different articles of produce brought fair prices.

—During the progress of the Edenburg fire, says the Clarion Republican, a man who thought the fire would only be checked when the suberbs were reached, offered his building on State street for $10. A bystander accepted the proposition, and the next morning rented the building for $20 per month.

—No second hand goods at the Philadelphia branch. None but first class goods are placed on the counters at this store. Don't fail to examine their clothing before purchasing elsewhere, and our word for it you will secure the greatest bargains to be found in the county.

Malicious Mischief.

A few nights since a party of malicious and ignorant men—if men we dare call them, for it was the work of children, and very dull ones, too—visited the village of Mt. Eagle and undertook to destroy the dam placed across the Bald Eagle creek at that place years ago by the West Branch canal company, and at present used by John B. Leathers, Esq., in connection with his extensive pottery, and in which he had several thousand dollars invested, in the shape of machinery, repairs, etc. The wretches, however, were not wholly successful, as the job was a bigger one than they imagined, and daylight dawned upon them ere they had proceeded far in their destructive work. No reason can be assigned for this action, unless, perhaps, they imagined it impeded the natural running of fish. They are said to be from the lower end of the township, and are known to Mr. Leathers.

This flagrant violation of the statute is second to none within our knowledge, and these men must either be very oblivious of the law or shockingly ignorant and daring. This dam was erected, as everybody knows, or at least should know, by special act of the Legislature, and to attempt to destroy it is as obviously a violation of the State laws as to go to Harrisburg, in a fit of frenzied excitement, and attempt to tear down the Capitol building. We don't know what Mr. Leathers intends doing in regard to the matter, but we do know that the ends of Justice will be defeated if these demon are not brought to account for their nefariousness.

The Telephone in a Thunder Showr.

During the heavy thunder storm of Sunday evening things were unusually lively about the telephone battery in the telegraph office. At every sharp flash of lightning the electric bells would be set in motion, and the wires became so heavily charged with electricity that several of them snapped asunder with a loud report, burning and blackening the woodwork to which the wires were attached. While writing at our desk, which is located near the battery on the opposite side of the partition, we were suddenly startled by a loud bang! resembling a pistol shot, while at the same time sparks from the battery flew out along the floor beneath our chair in a manner that caused us considerable uneasiness. Not knowing what would come next, we shouldered our paste-pot and climbed to the upper story, only to find that the compositors had also felt the force of the shock, and had deserted their cases. No damage was done, however, excepting that sustained by the telephone machinery, which was slight. Although it would seem to be unsafe to be near the instrument during a thunder storm, yet the telephone men inform us that there is not the slightest danger, and allege that it serves as an excellent conductor of electricity.

The Wallace Run Fire.

Mr. T. F. Wallace, of Wallace Run, called on us Friday and gave us some particulars in regard to the destructive fire that visited that section several weeks ago. It was said at the time that the fire originated through Mr. Wallace's carelessness in leaving a brush fire burning over night. This, he informs us, is untrue, as he visited the spot late in the evening, in company with Mr. Irvin, who was also a heavy loser by the fire, with buckets of water, which was poured upon the ashes and embers, and every other precaution taken to guard against the fire breaking out in the night. Mr. Wallace thinks the fire caught from a stump or root that was burning beneath the ground, and which the water failed to reach. The wind blew hard during the night, fanning the fire into a flame, which ignited the dry material lying around. The gentleman says the charge of carelessness does him injustice, as he was very particular to go all over the ground and extinguish every spark of fire that could be seen; that he and his companions did not leave the place as long as there was any smoke visible, and we willingly grant him the benefit of this explanation.

—At a meeting of the mountain City Band a committee was appointed to call on the ladies of the town and solicit contributions for their festival to be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of next week, in McClain's block, opposite the Bush House. We hope that a generous response will be given to this call, in order that the band may realize a handsome sum from the festival.

—Mr. Peters, the new proprietor of the Bush House, is going into the improvements on a large scale. Among other contemplated improvements is the kalsomining of the large dining hall. The house will receive a thorough scrubbing from attic to cellar, and a number of rooms are being repainted.

Decoration Day in Milesburg.

The programme for the observance of the decoration of the soldiers' graves was arranged by Mr. Archy Barthurst, one of Milesburg's noblest patriots and firm lovers of the Union.

The Pleasant Gap band was invited to be present and came to town in fine style in their new wagon and created quite a sensation. Next came the soldiers from Curtin's under the command of Captain Austin Curtin.

The soldiers and lodge of I. O. of O. F., of Milesburg, formed in procession, and with the band at the head of the column marched to the M. E. church, where they were joined by children from different Sunday-school. They then marched to the old cemetery. The services were very impressive and solemn, and of such a character as will never be forgotten by the citizens and many visitors of the town.

J. G. Love, Esq., of Bellefonte, delivered the address to a very large audience. Mr. Love spoke with great ease, and showed by his speech that he was a true patriot and must have been a good soldier. We all join in returning our thanks to him. Rev. Woodcock, of Milesburg, conducted the religious part of the ceremonies.

In all it was the best managed parade in honor of our dead soldiers that our beautiful little town ever beheld. Puck.

Wine for Females and Invalids.

It is well known that there are cases when the most strict advocates of temperance are obliged to use some sort of wine, especially those who are old and infirm. Many weakly females as well as invalids and debilitated persons in warm weather need a little strengthening wine. The great defficulty has been in procuring a rich wine that is reliable. There are many cases where wine would be used to great advantage in place of alcoholic drinks if only a genuine article could be had, and upon which physicians could rely as being strictly pure without alcoholic admixture. The Port Grape wine of Alfred Spear, of Passaic, New Jersey, has been analyzed by chemists in almost every State, and has always been proved strictly pure and beneficial. This wine is now being used in hospitals and in families for medicinal purposes, also in churches for communion services. Mr. Spear's mode of conducting the fermentation is such as to retain the rich flavor and sweetness of the fruit without much fermentation to create stimulative properties. —Transcript. For sale by J. The Markets.

Bellefonte, June 1, 1880.

The trade of Bellefonte is unusually dull this week.

GRAIN.

The wheat market in Bellefonte is quiet, but prices are firm at the advance. The upward movement in the price of wheat was unexpected and proved very clearly that the opinions of the best judges are not always to be relied on. No change in the coarser grains.

[There appears to be a difference of opinion about the price of grain in our market. The mills quote wheat at $1.10. Alexander & Co. publish a card that they are paying $1.25. Farmers can take their choice.]

At Philadelphia prices of wheat have materially advanced, amber selling at $1.40@1.45.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Hay is in good demand, but prices are irregular, according to quality. Good to prime timothy sold at $19@$20 per ton.

The curb market continues to supply fresh meats at reduced prices. Good butter continues scarce, and we have almost come to the conclusion that good butter makers are quite as scarce as gilt-edged butter.
